This is great news. I am delighted that my anniversary study has a home in Nursing Research, our discipline's primer journal! I just faxed my signed copyright form to you. Could you please let me know if you have gotten it. Thank you so much for catching those 2 typos that are listed on the acceptance letter.

Regarding question #1 (cluster of themes 4) please delete the word "all" . The sentence should read "That night when our little fairy was tucked..."

Regarding question #2 (next to last paragraph of text) the sentence should read "The outcome of the original...occurred as a complication of surgery."

Of course you have my permission to post on the Nursing Research Editor's website my original manuscript. I think this is a great feature of Nursing Research. I loved having my birth trauma article posted on the website a couple of years ago. It is fun getting emails from our readers about my manuscript and the review process. I use this site regularly with my doctoral students.
